This is an article about airline security. In the article, it is mentioned that airlines may prohibit the use of large electronic equipment, and airlines can handle electronic products. Due to the occurrence of some terrorist incidents, people have a certain fear of the use of electronic equipment in aviation. Therefore, the use of electronic devices should be banned, but the income of flights has been greatly affected. It is suggested that the use of electronic devices in aviation should be replaced by reading books, but these strategies are clearly not needed.

I believe that in airline security we should control and strictly inspect contraband to ensure people's safety. The security of information security should also be taken care of, which is related to the security of trade secrets and countries, and we should attach importance to the protection of information.
