This is an article about air pollution. It introduces people's yearning for green and open space, such as meeting a lot of people in a warm park, and people are harmonious with each other. Air plays an important role in human life, and if humans can breathe and share air, it is usually peaceful. At the same time, there is an interdependent relationship between the plant world and us. Woods by releasing oxygen to give us a breath of fresh air, life has the phenomenon of deforestation and the burning of fossil fuels has caused pollution to the air, so we should keep the air and plants contribution and development.

I think we should ban deforestation and the burning of fossil fuels. On the premise of caring for survival, we should learn to begin to enjoy life and reduce air pollution and create a harmonious and safe home.
